

Congressman Max Rose: “With Passover Approaching, it is important to Remember the Power of a Strong Community.”

Congressman Max Rose. “It is vital to follow the instructions put into place by the city and state in order to protect one another.”

The spread of COVID-19 has been an understandably confusing, frustrating, and difficult time for our community, our city New York, and our country The United States of America.

But I want to let everyone know that work is being done around the clock to ensure the health and safety of all our neighbors.

Beating this public health crisis requires all of us to work together: use common sense, not spread misinformation, and most importantly--stay home as much as possible.

It is vital to follow the instructions put into place by the city and state in order to protect one another and stop Coronavirus in its tracks.

We must do everything we can to protect the most vulnerable members of our society, and I won't stop fighting until we are fully prepared and coming out on the other side of this.

There is so much uncertainty in the world right now. But I am certain that together, we will get through this.

This is the strongest city in the world, and we have lived through tough times before.

And now, with Passover approaching, it is important to remember the power of community, overcoming obstacles together, and pushing through times of hardship.

Chag Pesach Sameach.
